National Academy of Public Administration Holds Annual Fall Meeting
Meeting to Focus on “Strengthening Public Administration in a Transition”

WASHINGTON, DC – The National Academy of Public Administration will hold its annual Fall Meeting on November 16-17, 2016, focusing on “Strengthening Public Administration in a Transition.”

The Fall Meeting seeks to explore how government at all levels must strengthen its capacity for governance, with special emphasis on the 2016 Presidential Transition. The meeting will offer panel discussions on topics that pertain to the Presidential transition, including national security; cyber security; recruitment and retention of the federal workforce; collaboration across boundaries; strategic foresight in program management; agile performance management and many others.

On November 16th, the Academy will hold a panel discussion on “The 40 Toughest Management Jobs in Government” at its Washington, DC headquarters.

Keynote speakers on November 17th include Ado Machida, Director of Policy Implementation for the Trump Campaign, who will engage in a keynote conversation on the Trump transition process. The Honorable Thomas M. Davis, III, former Member of the U.S. House of Representatives and currently Director of Federal Government Affairs at Deloitte & Touche LLP will deliver the James E. Webb Lecture and Elaine Kamarck, Senior Fellow in the Governance Studies program and Director of the Center for Effective Public Management at Brookings Institution, will deliver the Elmer B. Staats Lecture.

The November 17th agenda also will include the induction of the Academy’s new class of Fellows and the presentation of the George Graham Award, the Louis Brownlow Award and the Herbert Roback Award.
