United States Secret Service
Strategic Enhancements to Support Service and Field Operations

ABOUT THE NATIONAL ACADEMY

The National Academy of Public Administration is a non-profit, independent organization of top public management and organizational leaders who tackle the nation’s most critical and complex public management challenges. With a network of more than 900 distinguished Fellows and an experienced professional staff, the National Academy is uniquely qualified and trusted across government to provide objective advice and practical solutions based on systematic research and expert analysis. Established in 1967 and chartered by Congress in 1984, the National Academy continues to make a positive impact by helping federal, state and local governments respond effectively to current circumstances and changing conditions. BACKGROUND

The United States Secret Service (U.S. Secret Service/USSS) was established in 1865, originally tasked with the sole purpose of combatting the forgery of the American dollar. It was, over time, retasked by Congress to undertake the protection of the President of the United States, and other key government officials, in addition to the protection of critical infrastructure. In 2003, it was moved from the Department of the Treasury to the Department of Homeland Security.

In 2016, USSS contracted with the National Academy of Public Administration (the Academy) to undertake an independent review of the agency’s organizational reforms resulting from recommendations by the Protective Mission Panel and the House Oversight and Government Reform Committee. The Academy Panel issued recommendations in a number of areas, including change management, ethics and compliance, technological investment, capital planning, and human resources.

PROJECT DESCRIPTION

The U.S. Secret Service is seeking to use the views and goals of its senior leaders and the Federal Employee Viewpoint Survey (FEVS) to strengthen the agency’s organizational functionality and climate, as per the President’s Management Agenda. USSS has contracted with the Academy to review the organizational missions, structures, and challenges of mission support and field offices, as well as identify necessary reforms to improve working climate.

This assessment will be conducted via interviews with staff at mission support and field offices, along with other USSS mission stakeholders. A gap analysis framework will be employed to develop a sound understanding of the current needs for and access to support field office services, a vision for how those offices could best address future challenges, and coherent actions to achieve that vision within a realistic level of resources. Best practices for addressing issues in high-demand mission areas will be applied to the assessment, drawing on experiences in similar federal organizations. The Academy will draw on the findings and recommendations from the 2016 study.
